Summary

I am a passionate software developer with a journey that began in high school, where I discovered my love for coding through Delphi and SQL. Since earning my BSc in IT from North-West University (NWU), I've expanded my expertise across multiple programming languages and technologies, with a strong focus on web development. Currently, I'm honing my skills in the React ecosystem, including frameworks like Next.js and tools like Supabase. My goal is to grow as a versatile full stack developer, balancing front-end and back-end expertise to build seamless, efficient applications.
